IC asking for follow ups

So, I'm sorry to bring this all up. It's just frustrating for me to see things like this go public when I'm more than happy to help work through them. It hurts the community and that's not what I want, and I know you don't either.

I see those comments from Regina in the form, my apologies.

I dont, which is why I was silent for several months on this issue. But to be honest, IC didnt do anything about it, I was still unable to go to meetings, and the weight of what happened and the unfair and abusive treatment was giving me crazy amounts of anxiety.

I'm sorry you dealt with that. I was told at length that you attending meetings was no issue at all.

I find a lot of what Omen says to be highly untruthful

That's unfortunate. There's not much I can do about that.

Likewise

Likewise

I can't say I've had similar experiences.

This was a first for me as well, which is probably why it left me unable to sleep at night on more than one occasion

Have you ever had something that bothered you so much you couldn't make your brain stop to sleep? This was that for me.

More often than I care to admit. This Organization kills me somedays.

I believe it. I cant imagine how hard it must be to handle so much on IC

You guys do a LOT

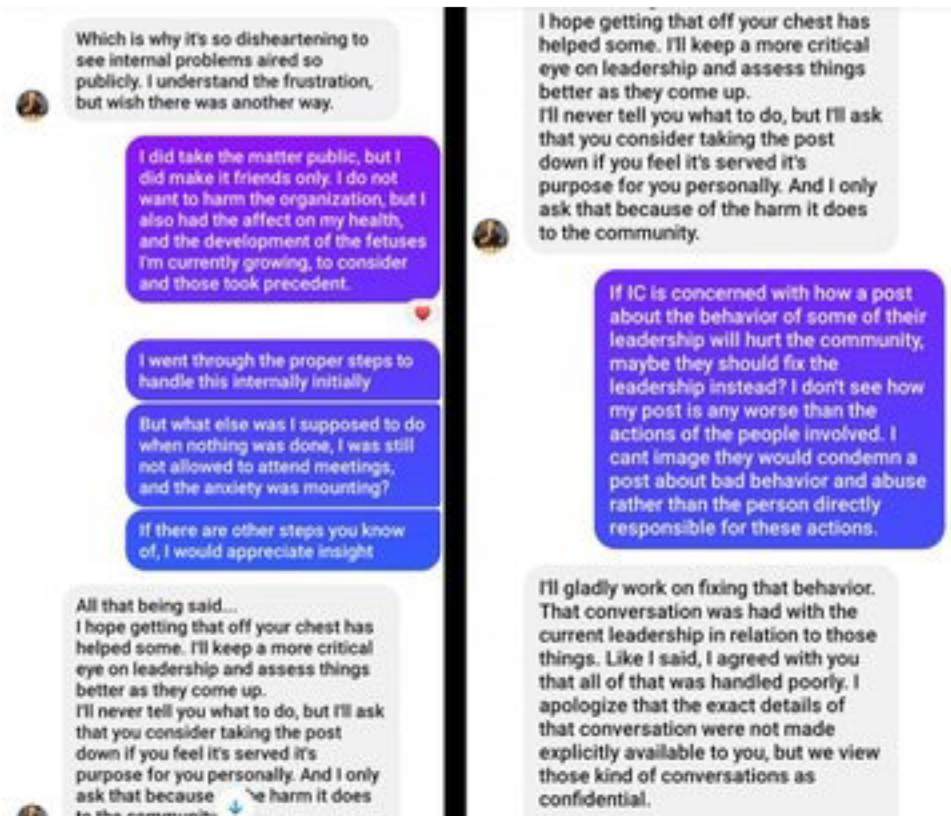

IC is a full time job by itself

It's a bit much sometimes, but it's worth it. And I know you feel the same.

True

Which is why it's so disheartening to see internal proble... aired so

We'll get our ages to you all at once.

This is a thread that references some other people's experiences that might be useful to you. I (David) told the person quoted here, Rumor, you were looking for more information.

No, but we wouldn't use the phrase "sexual deviancy" in any case. The issue isn't deviance but power structures and consent or lack thereof. We found out more in the process of people coming to us and sharing our story with with other people, and have subsequently shared the stories of people who have talked openly about what they went thru (again, this thread has some of that - twitter.com/QueerSatanic/s ...) but it's not been written about in news articles or shown up in other official documents, and as you saw in the evidence submitted, what was initially shared was just making people aware of all the stuff that was already out there
